VILLAGE PLACE BROOKHAVEN WELCOMES THE LITTLE HOUSE OF ART To Thrive, Children Need Creativity and Community

ATLANTA – May 20, 2010 – Village Place Brookhaven (www.vpbrookhaven.com) is pleased to announce that The Little House of Art, an art studio designed for children ages two and up, will open for business in June.

The Little House of Art (www.thelittlehouseofart.com) will offer a series of art classes and workshops for 'little and big artists,' taught by educators who have experience as artists. Families and groups are invited to host a private art party, workshop or field trip at The Little House of Art in Brookhaven where each artwork activity is designed to reinforce problem solving skills, creative thinking and imagination. Children learn to work with an array of art materials and create unique projects while building self-awareness and confidence through the creative process.

“Through our classes, we hope to inspire children of all ages and help them discover their unique talents,” says Fareeza Mohammed, co-owner of The Little House of Art with Leonora Landa. “Many schools are no longer offering art classes due to budgetary constraints, and we want to fill this sad void. To us, art is extremely important in the overall development and encouragement of the next doctor, architect or Picasso!”

Classes offered at the Village Place Brookhaven location include 100+ Arts and Crafts, Parent and Me Art, School Day and Summer Art Camp, and more.

Dillon Baynes, president of Orinda Corporation, who manages Village Place Brookhaven on behalf of Wrightwood Capital notes: “The Little House of Art is a welcome new addition to our neighborhood, and a great resource for the many young families that have moved here. Making and being exposed to art is important in life; we all know that to thrive, children need creativity...and community.”

Located in Atlanta's fashionable Brookhaven community on Dresden Drive within walking distance (less than a quarter mile) from the Brookhaven/Oglethorpe MARTA station, Village Place Brookhaven features 41 luxury residences and 11 office condominiums, built above retail and restaurant space in two buildings. The live-work community is nestled in a 5-acre park-like setting not far from Peachtree Road. The development is close to some of the city's most popular restaurants and cafes and is just five minutes from Lenox Square, Phipps Plaza and the Buckhead business district.

In addition to The Little House of Art, Village Place Brookhaven is already home to J. Christopher's, Verde Taqueria and The Library Coffee Co., while Yoforia will open later this month. Other tenants include Natural Body Spa and Shop, The Mercantile, Davonshire and Allure, while across the street restaurants Haven and Valenza have become popular fine dining destinations in the neighborhood.
